SOME THOUGHTS ON THE PRESIDENTIAL QUESTION.

The last Washington Express, of which Hugh F. Murray, Esq., is the Political Editor, contains an editorial of nearly three columns in length, giving some strong reasons why the people of the South could not vote for Greeley, and the Express arrives at the conclusion that it would be wrong for the National Democratic Convention to acquiesce in the nomination of Greeley and Brown.

The article is able and well written, and the conclusions are drawn after much reflection and deliberation. The arguments are worthy of public consideration, and while our space will not permit us to give the whole editorial, we make some extracts elsewhere to show its general tenor and method of reasoning.

We do not think the News amenable to the general charge the Express prefers against Southern journals, of quoting only such articles as are favorable to the Cincinnati nominees. In an editorial a few days since, headed "Let us Reason Together," we summed up the principal influences at work against Mr. Greeley, at the same time expressing our opinion that he would be accepted by our Convention at Baltimore. Since then, public sentiment has set more strongly in favor of the Liberal candidates, and we now consider that it is not only probable, but almost certain that Greeley will be taken up at Baltimore.

We have all along contended that it is the duty of all who are opposed to Grant to unite their forces to defeat him in November. The difficult question to decide is, who is the best man to lead the Opposition in the National campaign?

If Mr. Greeley cannot thoroughly unite the anti-Radical elements of the country, it is certainly his highest duty to give way to some one who can. Will he do it?

Let these questions be considered by our Delegates to Baltimore. They will be fresh from the people. They will be presumed to know the popular sentiment in their respective Districts. If it be settled, and we believe the point is generally conceded, that there is no prospect for the success of a straight Democratic ticket, our party should waive the privilege of making a nomination of its own.

We should make choice between the two Republican candidates, and recommend, as the choice of evils, those candidates and that platform most favorable to the South and that would give better promise of an honest, faithful, constitutional Administration.

If when our Delegates get to Baltimore, it be ascertained that Mr. Greeley cannot receive the whole strength of the Democratic party, but that a Liberal Republican, like Trumbull or Adams, can, it strikes us that steps should be taken for consultation and conference with leading Liberal Republicans, looking to a withdrawal of Greeley, and the substitution of a candidate less objectionable to the masses of our party. For such purpose, the Convention ought perhaps to remain in session a few days longer, until some such arrangement be made.

With all due deference to the opinion of the Express, if it be decided we can do no better, we do not think Greeley's past course should deter us from promptly accepting him under the circumstances.

We would then accept him, not as our nominee, as there would be no Democratic candidate in the field, but as a Republican less odious than Grant.

We would then accept him on the Cincinnati Platform, which the Express thinks is very good.

We would then accept him because of his liberal construction of that platform, as shown in his admirable letter of acceptance.

We would then accept him because his election would be the death-blow of Radicalism in the country, and would pave the way for an honest administration of the government.

We would then accept him because, despite his past objectionable record, he has shown some magnanimity towards the South has advocated universal Amnesty since the close of the war, and is now in favor of "clasping hands over the bloody chasm."

We would then accept him because we believe his Administration would be in some degree controlled by those who contributed to his election.

We would then accept him, especially at the South, because we feel sure he would oppose all further hostile legislation towards us on the part of the Federal Government, and that he would do all in his power to establish, in fact as well as in name, national peace and reconciliation.

We would then accept him because, though it shall decide to accept Greeley, the Democratic party should preserve its organization, and move forward in solid, unbroken columns—in perfect order, and with the determined tread and unaltering step of firm, tried, disciplined, veteran soldiery.

It should move forward with shield locked above shield—with stout hearts and strong arms—without straggling and without demoralization.

It should move forward as patriots, burrying all past differences, forgetting all old feuds, laying their prejudices on the altar of their country, hushing the voice of faction and of discord, in order to wrench from the hands of despotism the bruised and mangled form of Constitutional liberty.

ANOTHER GUN SPIKED.

The Era, with its usual recklessness, is blowing away lustily over the charge that Judge Merrimon is opposed to the National Democratic Convention to acquiesce in the nomination of Greeley and Brown.

We are willing to let the public judge whether or not we had cause to complain of the Carolinian's conduct.

[From the Washington Express.]

The final and feeblest objection to an exposition of Mr. Greeley's character in an unenviable aspect is that there is a probability that his advocates in Convention may out-number his opponents, and he may become our candidate in despite of us, in which case we shall be called upon to face our own recital of his errors and vices, and we can in consequence make but a weak fight in his behalf. To this we have a ready answer; the South will be servile indeed when she accepts Horace Greeley otherwise than as a choice of evils, and we hope there are enough old Confederate soldiers in the land to teach the people the wisdom of amputating a limb to save a life.

For our part we have too much respect to state the case in any other form. We anticipate the objection that it is now too late to instruct and warn the people as the delegates to Baltimore will be appointed before this admittance can be promulgated. We say in response: it is not too late for the people to instruct those delegates, (who are their agents and servants) and to give them to understand that no personal predilections are to countervail public sentiment in this momentous crisis. We hope that every district in our State will delegate good and patriotic men who will appreciate the duty of adhering faithfully to what they account the views of the constituents.

We acknowledge that it is "better to have Greeley than Grant," if he be true to the cause in which he is enlisted, but we say in the first place that we cannot have Greeley even if we desire him; and in the second place, that we can have a better man. If we establish

SENATOR SCHURZ.

Senator Schurz, with other leading Republicans, including Hon. Jacob D. Cox, William Cullen Bryant and several others, has published a card, calling for a conference of gentlemen opposed to the present Administration, with a view to uniting all the elements of opposition in a common effort in the Presidential election.

A number of gentlemen have been invited under this call to meet in New York June the 20th, to take such action as the situation of things may require.

The object of this movement, [no doubt is to agree upon some Liberal Republican who can more successfully unite the anti-Grant element than can Mr. Greeley.

It seems from this that Schurz is satisfied that Greeley cannot get the German vote—which is an important element of strength in the Liberal movement.

JUDGE SHIPP'S CARD.

We have received too late for publication to-day the card of Hon. W. M. Shipp, our candidate for Attorney General, refuting certain charges made against him by one Virgil S. Lusk, in connection with the Swepson settlement.

Judge Shipp gives a plain, unvarnished statement of the whole transaction, which is a triumphant vindication of his conduct from charges of fraud or collusion with either Swepson, Swepson's counsel, or Swepson's friends.

Judge Shipp's statements are fully corroborated by the certificates of Judge Battle and J. B. Bachelor, Esq.

We will lay the whole matter, with our comments, before our readers in our next issue.

THE FIRST RESPONSE.

It will be seen from a communication signed "S. A. E." that our article on "Indigent Orphans" has elicited a response from Oxford, favorable to locating the institution in that place, and recommending St. John's College as the proper building.

We would respectfully suggest to the citizens of Oxford the propriety of taking some steps towards bringing the subject to the attention of the people of North Carolina.

NEWSPAPER COURTESY.

The Raleigh News is an excellent Democratic paper—one of the best that reaches our office, but like too many of the gentry who are running organs of that party it is too apt to "go off half-cocked." If the News man will take a glass of ice water and then re-read the article complained of in our paper he will see that his quarter column editorial in reference to it is un-called for as it is in bad taste. We denounced the rumors, not the editor. Would it not be well for the latter to put in practice a little of the "editorial courtesy and propriety" he so flippantly discusses about?—Elizabeth City Carolinian.

What we objected to in the Carolinian was the injustice it did us in giving only a portion of our article. It was that paper that "went off half-cocked," not the News.

We published as an item of political news the report that C. L. Cobb would probably support Greeley for President; but we expressly stated that we gave the rumor for what it was worth—thus not attaching any significance to it. We contradicted the rumor promptly, as soon as we found our informant was mistaken.

The contradiction appeared several days before the indignant denial in the Carolinian was published—and the Editor must have known of the correction.

Yet in face of that he makes a garbled quotation from our paper and pronounces our statement "false"—grossly!

In his article above quoted, he says it was the rumors he denounced, not the Editor. But he made us appear in his paper as stating as a fact what we expressly gave as a rumor—"for what it was worth"—and had even corrected it before its denial appeared in the Carolinian.

Now, this is absolutely false. Judge Merrimon, in a card which was extensively published over the State last summer, and which the Era must have seen, advocated the Homestead, and bitterly opposed any proposition to change it except to enlarge its provisions.

But how stands Gov. Caldwell on the Homestead question?

It is well known that when Judge Settle resigned his seat on the Supreme Court bench, Gov. Caldwell appointed Hon. Nat. Boyd, who is opposed to the Homestead law, to succeed him.

Caldwell appointed Boyd no doubt because the latter thought the Homestead unconstitutional!

Let the people know that while Judge Merrimon is a friend and advocate of the Homestead law, Gov. Caldwell has put an anti-Homestead Judge on the Supreme Court bench.

POLITICAL MAP.

We return thanks to the proprietor for a "Political Outline Map of North Carolina."

The map is in colors and shows the different Congressional Districts, the voting population in each, the vote of the two parties in 1870 and 1871, the Senatorial Districts and the number of Representatives to which each county is entitled.

The map was arranged by M. J. G. Nichols. Price 50cts; in covers for the pocket $1.00. Send orders to Nichols & Gorman, publishers.

these propositions, then we shall claim to have shown that the question is not whether we shall have Greeley or Grant.

First, then, with our present lights, we cannot see how Mr. Greeley can be elected if nominated. The whip and spur of politicians are potent, we know, but there is an instinct of self-preservation in the people which no specious argument can divert from its function, and a memory of galling wrongs which no fulsome declamation can deaden. When the people are told by Gen. Grant's canvassers that Mr. Greeley taught the Southern States that they might depart from the Union in peace, and then called savagely on the North to unleash the bloodhounds of war as soon as those States undertook to act upon his opinion, when they are told that Mr. Greeley, through his paper, the New York Tribune, said on the 1st of May, 1861, that he should not be content to see the South whipped, but she must be conquered, so that the cries of widows and orphans might mingle in a diapason wail of despair as they rose from the ashes of desolate hearthstones; when they are told that Greeley was one of the few woman-born pipers who sanctioned Ben Butler's order at New Orleans, to treat "as women" the wives and sisters of those "boys in the grey" who are now called upon to bridge the "bloody chasm" of sectional animosity, we think that from the sturdy survivors of that sanguinary conflict will come this answer: We been good soldiers and we know how to respect a magnanimous foe, we honor the gallant and generous Hancock, who breached the bayonet and the battle storm, and since the vicissitudes of a chivalrous fight have given us the power to elevate an honest adversary of other days, we desire to bury past hostilities and welcome the re-establishment of fraternity, but there is no generosity or manhood, but rather craven servility, in kissing the hand which dealt not the brave foreman's downright blow, but the murderer's cruel and cowardly thrust.

SUMMARY.

The Presidential contest must be between Grant and our best man. Greeley is unpopular with those who know him, is not our best man. Therefore the contest is not between Greeley and Grant.

STATE MATTERS.

Our friends throughout the State will place us under obligations if we will furnish us with any items of news that may transpire in their respective sections, as we desire to make this department specially full.

WILSON wants a Thespian Club.

Tus Temperance cause is upward and onward in Murfreesboro.

AND, now Weldon has the Sally Van den.

SEVEN new buildings are going up in Murfreesboro.

THE crops between Greensboro and Reidsville are looking remarkably well.

THE Charlotte dog law goes into effect to-day.

THE recent copious rains have materially injured the corn and cotton prospect in the Murfreesboro section.

FRANKLIN county has an organization known as the Franklin county sub-soil attachment company.

THE Reidsville Record says large quantities of freight pass daily over the R. & D. R. R.

REIDSVILLE has a Dolly Varden bird. It is like a Robin red breast, but sings like a Catbird.

THE mechanics of Tarboro are considering the question of the ten hour system of labor in private meetings.

An excursion of the colored citizens of Charlotte to Columbia, South Carolina, will occur July 4th.

Chorus of all kinds, says the Ashevillle Pioneer, in this section are suffering from drought.

THE hay and cat crops will undoubtedly be shortened, and unless we are blessed with copious showers soon, the corn crop will be materially injured.

Since the election of the "dry" ticket in Asheville, the small boys of the town waded off to the country in search of a Castalian fountain.

A NUMBER of deserters, supposed to be from a company of U. S. troops stationed at Spartanburg, S. C., have been lurking around Asheville.

TWENTY-five marriage licences were issued in Halifax last month, Manning of the News not counted in—not likely to be in for some time.

THE commencement exercises of the Wesleyan Female College at Murfreesboro, will commence on the 18th and continue three days.

Rev. Dr. Moran, the Demosthenes of the North Carolina Methodist Pulpit, has been granted a six weeks furlough by his congregation in Wilmington, and is visiting his father in Ohio.

ROBERT MURRAY, of the Franklin Courier, is running in connection with his machine, the Roanoke News, during the absence of Manning, on the Editorial excursion.

THE Hon. Edward Conigland will canvas Halifax county the coming campaign. Mr. C. is one of the "true and tried" of Eastern Carolina, and one of the most effective speakers in the State.

THE Record, published at Reidsville, by Messrs. Albright & Houston, is one of the spiciest sheets in the State, and contains more local matter than any journal of its size in the West. Persevere boys, hold your position as it is, and you are bound to succeed.

BAD boys shoot guns at the Reidsville Record office for the fun of the thing. Albright, who received a spent shot in his forehead, the other day while setting in his sanctum, "cant see it," and asks the boys to turn their guns another direction.

THE Pee Dee Herald of the 13th says: The fine rains of the past week or ten days have greatly improved the appearance of crops and gardens, and have inspired the hopes of the farmer for a good crop. The crop prospect in all this section, and as far as we can hear is better than it has been for several years. We have seen people from the grain growing counties of Stanly and Union who say they have scarcely ever witnessed a better wheat crop. If we can have a good crop and dispose of Grant and his large family of kith and kin, and Mars Tod and his crew, and have their places filled by honest and competent men, so that it will no longer be a burden to taxation, &c., we won't be a happy people.

MISS JEANIE PATTERSON is delighted with the Wilmingtonians. Says the Journal:

Miss Jeannie Patterson's reading last night was one of the most delightful entertainments that we have had in this city in many years, and no one but those who enjoy it can estimate what was lost by those who stayed away. If native talent of a remarkably high order, modesty, grace and beauty, especially when combined in one of our own Southern ladies, and applied to a noble purpose, have a claim upon public favor, we may confidently expect a crowded house for Miss Patterson on Monday next, at which time she has promised to give another reading.

GOV. CALDWELL has respite the Adair murders, who were to be hanged on Friday last at Hendersonville till the 12th day of July. This interposition of Executive clemency between the gallows and its destined victims, was occasioned by a confession of Martin Baird, one of the parties now under sentence of death for the murder of the Weston family. He last week confessed to the part he enacted in the Weston family tragedy, expressing deep contrition of heart, and implicating old man Adair, the father of the two boys who are condemned, and also his youngest son who is now at liberty. He says the old man, tottering on the brink of the grave, but with a heart "set on fire of hell," planned and instigated the slaughter of this humble and helpless family, and that he, of all, is most to blame for the shedding of the innocent blood which now cries from the ground for vengeance. Upon this statement a warrant was procured and this brutal sire of brutal offspring was arrested and committed to jail in Hendersonville, and officers are searching for his young son.

Fate of Three Confidence Men—Sharpness of a Diwiddie Farmer.

Wm. Martin and Wm. G. Austin, indicted with Wm. H. Benson and Charles E. Warren, all men from the North, for obtaining $113 from Mr. Thomas H. Williams of Dinwiddie county, on false pretenses, were arraigned at the bar of the Hustings court yesterday, and plead guilty, and was adjudged five years' confinement, each in the State Penitentiary. Wm. H. Benson was then put on trial and plead "not guilty," but was convicted by the jury, and his term of confinement in the penitentiary fixed at five years. Warren will be tried today.

It appeared from the testimony that these four "sharps" having "spotted" Mr. Williams, a plain, unsuspecting countryman, deputised Martin to approach him to get his money. Martin went up to Williams, got in conversation with him, asked him where he was from, where he was going to, &c., and introduced himself as a person who had come down here as a purveyor of tobacco. Having ascertained that Williams was going to Petersburg next day, he begged the pleasure of accompanying him, and Mr. Williams readily consented. Martin then asked Williams to go with him to the American Hotel, where he was to meet a gentleman and pay for a lot of tobacco, that day purchased.

At the American they met William's confederates and one of them presented a bill for $113, including one item of about $28 for freight. Martin pulled out his pocket-book and offered to pay the bill out of a check for $2,500, which he exhibited, at the same time exposing a lot of sham gold coins. The confederate said that he could not give change for the check. Then Martin proposed to borrow $28 of his new acquaintance, and seeing that Williams, who had opened his pocket-book, had more money, increased his request to the amount of $113, which sum he obtained. Williams was at first satisfied that all was right, but as Martin now slipped away from him, he began to suspect that something was wrong. He spent an hour or two in going about the streets telling everybody that he was robbed. Then he bethought him of a plan to capture the rascals. He went down to the "Blenius House," disguised himself in shabby old clothes, cut off his beard, and commenced to wander around on the lookout.

Near the Packet office he descried two of the men. He followed them up to the Seventh street bridge. They stopped on top of the bridge. He took a position under it. After a few moments the two men were joined by their two confederates. Williams then got hold of a negro who was passing under the bridge and gave him $5 to run for a policeman. As soon as the policeman appeared in sight (the negro had gotten two) the four confidence men began to disperse. Immediately Williams came out from his concealment, drew his pistol, and commanded the party to halt. The party stopped and surrendered. Upon examination of their persons after the arrest it was found that the $113 had been equally divided between them.

The evidence against the three men already disposed of was very conclusive; it will scarcely prove less so in the case of Warren, who is to be tried to-day.

EVERYTHING in nature indulges in amusement of some kind. The lightnings play, the winds whistle, the thunder rolls, the snow flies, the rills and cascades sing and dance, the waves leap, the fields smile, the vines creep and run, the buds shoot, and the hills have tops to play with. But some of them have their seasons of melancholy. The tempests moan, the zephyrs sigh, the brooks murmur, and the mountains look blue.

FOR SALE.

VALUABLE LAND FOR SALE IN THE COUNTY OF WARREN.

I offer for sale, five hundred and two (502) acres of land, situated in the county of Warren, on Shocco Creek, adjoining the Sulphur Springs, a town of about 100 houses, on both sides of the Turnpike Road, leading from the Sulphur Springs to the neighboring Town of Ridgeway, on the State Line, between South Carolina and North Carolina. The land is in a state of cultivation, and the soil is sandy, loam and chocolate surface, undulating—well watered, and yields excellent crop of corn, tobacco, wheat, oats, clover, &c. This is one of the best tracts of land in this section, and will be worth a great deal.

George Fields, who resides near the land, will take pleasure in showing it to persons wishing to examine it, and is anxious to negotiate for its sale.

LORISBURG, June 12th, 1872. J. S. PERRY.

AT LAST.

I shall not forget you. The years may be tender, But vain are their efforts to soften my heart, And the strong hands of Time are too feeble and slender To garland the grave that is made in my heart.

Your image is ever about me—before me, Your voice floats abroad on the voice of the wind, And the spell of your presence, in absence is over me, And the dead of the past, in the present I find.

I cannot forget you. The one boon ungiven, The boon of your love is the cross that I bear; In the midnight of sorrow I vainly have striven To crush in my heart the sweet image hid there.

To banish the beautiful dreams that are thronging, The halls of my memory—dreams worse than vain; For though once I was withheld, I am thirsting and longing, For the one joy denied me, I'm pining in pain.

I would not forget you. I live to remember, The beautiful hopes that bloomed to decay, And brighter than June grows the bleakest December. When peopled with ghosts of the dreams passed away.

One loving you truly, I love you forever; I mourn not in weak, idle grief for the past, But the love in my bosom will never, oh, never, Pass out, or another pass in, first or last.
